

Hearing that the Sinclair Broadcast is making its affiliate station air the clearly political "documentary" Stolen Honor is a clear misuse of the public airwaves. I am requesting that the FCC review this issue prior to the airing of this program. To wait until AFTER the event would be extremely irresponsible given the media attention that this has already been given.

Because Sinclair is targeting stations that are not cable, but those using the "free" airwaves, this makes Sinclair's clear violation all the more serious.

What if you knew before the airing of the SuperBowl that Ms. Jackson was planning to expose herself to national audiences and did nothing to stop it. Even though you would have fined her and the parent company that also knew about it, the FCC would be equally guilty because you could have intervened. Please play by your own rules. You know this is going to happen and I urge you to make sure rules are enforced regarding appropriate use of our country's airwaves. It's your job and why your agency exists.
